So I'm about to run in to the IOA check-in, but so far RDX won't work on my computer, and it's crashed both April and Laura's. I'm attaching the current version of the tox review to this email. Would you mind letting SRC know (and if I'm cc'd they can just follow up with me right? So you don't get bugged all day)? You could forward them the version of the tox review attached to this message, and they could figure out what's going on (hopefully). As a last resort, we could move forward with it not completely hero-ized.

Also, was this the last version of the arrays that you had corrected? I pulled it from the ER-arrays folder under public comment.

Hi Lou,
see below. I'm really sorry to dump all this your way. Bad timing on my end...
Sue

(the HERO thing is totally weird. I can easily call Heather and ask her. Please don't hesitate to call me. I expect I'll be home for the next few hours at least. Everyone still seems to be asleep!)

Hi Sue,

Again due to paranoia, I'm attaching the latest version of the RDX tox review to this email. Here's a list of what's remaining to be done, proposed solutions, and one major issue I've run into.

I think everything else will wait for Monday

If we can figure out this hero thing, I think we're in the home stretch. Have a good weekend. If you get a chance to email or have any ideas, let me know!
